The Literary Press Group is a collective of independent Canadian literary presses, all of whom work tirelessly to introduce and support incredibly diverse voices that keep the Canadian literary scene vital, fresh, and interesting.

When you choose a book from an LPG publisher, you're choosing to support some of the hardest working people in the Canadian publishing industry. That's because, for our members, publishing is a labour of love. Although they each have a unique mandate, our publishers share a commitment to introducing new authors and new ideas to the Canadian literary scene. Our publishers are taking risks and supporting authors who are outside of the mainstream. And when they're not bringing you something completely new, they are reissuing important literary titles that are out-of-print and/or difficult to source.

Many of our publishers' books can now be found on All Lit Up, our new online platform. Visit www.AllLitUp.ca regularly to discover new releases, and get behind-the-scenes content about our publishers, books, and authors on our blog.
